10. Julie Wootton the chair of Max Appeal (the charity acting as secretariat to the APPG) gave a brief outline of the issues being faced by people who have the condition, or child or family member who have 22q11DS. It was agreed that the condition affected all aspects of family life and was something that should be brought to the attention of MPs so they could better serve the needs of their constituents.

11. A good debate ensued concerning the APPG Aims for this Parliament. It was agreed that the long term objective was to bring a substantive report to the house concerning the effects of the condition and the ramifications that had for health, education and social care providers in terms of known costs and efficiencies of having co-ordinated care and support. The tests to diagnose the condition, perceptions of those with the condition to society, and the estimated prevalence of the condition were also discussed.

12. The agreed actions were:

- Max Appeal to:
 - organise an academic to attend the next meeting to inform members of on-going research
 - Commence work to produce the long term report on researching costs and multiple appointment costs as opposed to 'one stop shop'
 - Supply feedback from Great Ormond Street on their costs of running the specialist clinic
 - Inform the APPG of a headline fact concerning 22q11DS that would be of media interest
 - Organise a leading academic to join the APPG
